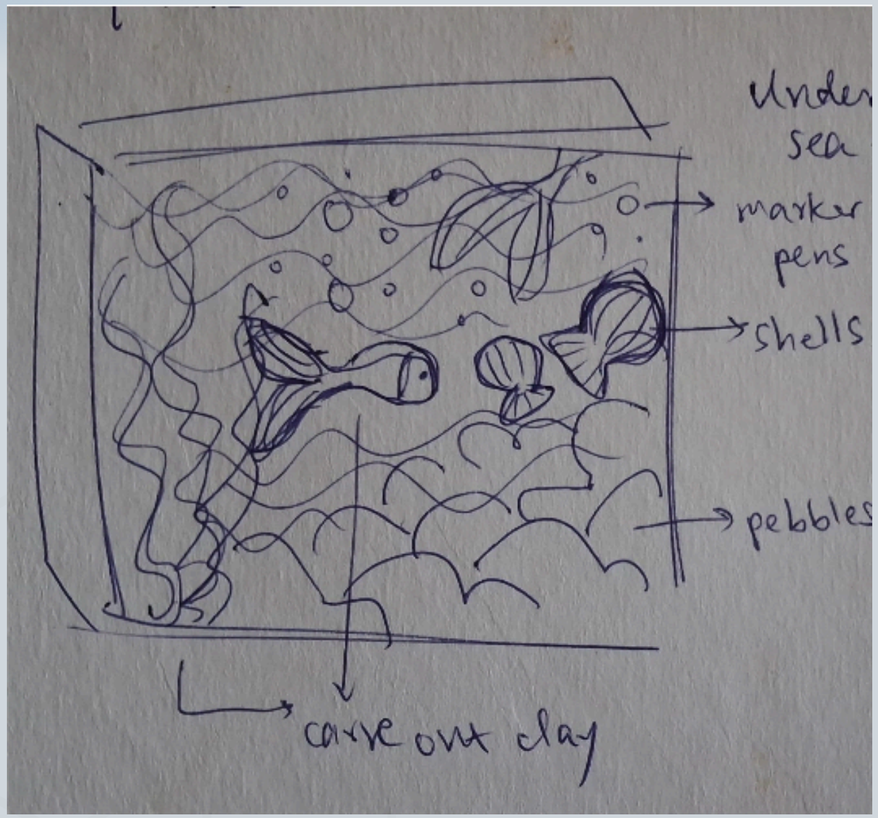
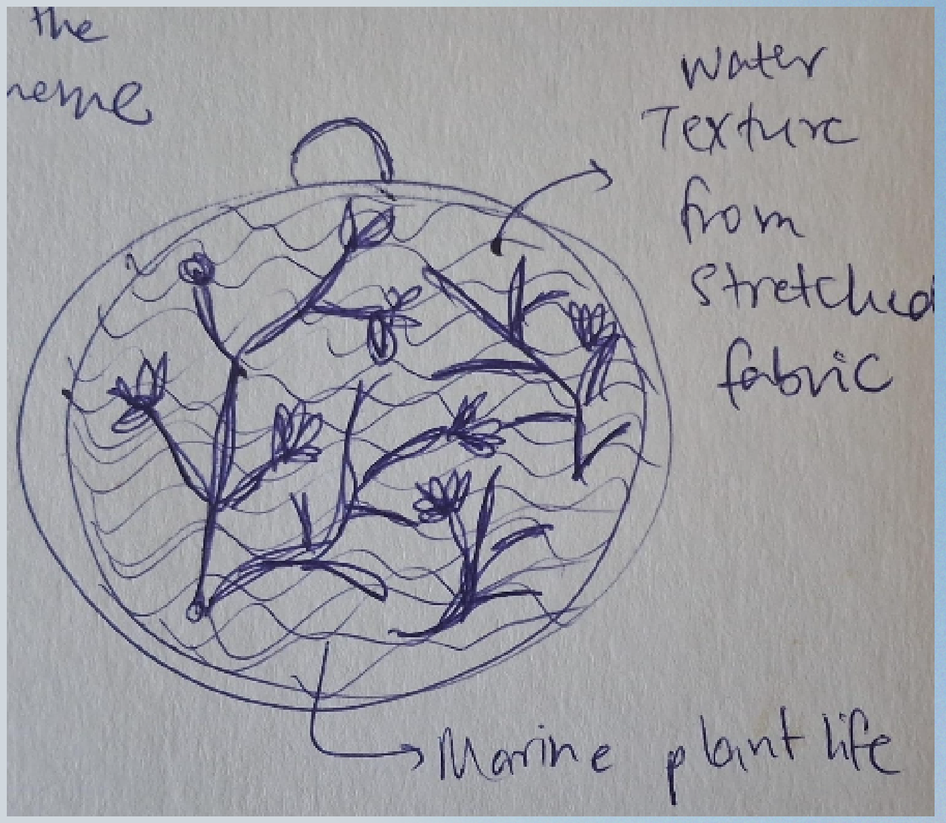
Impressions of the Everyday

Medha Bhavani Girish
EE23B112

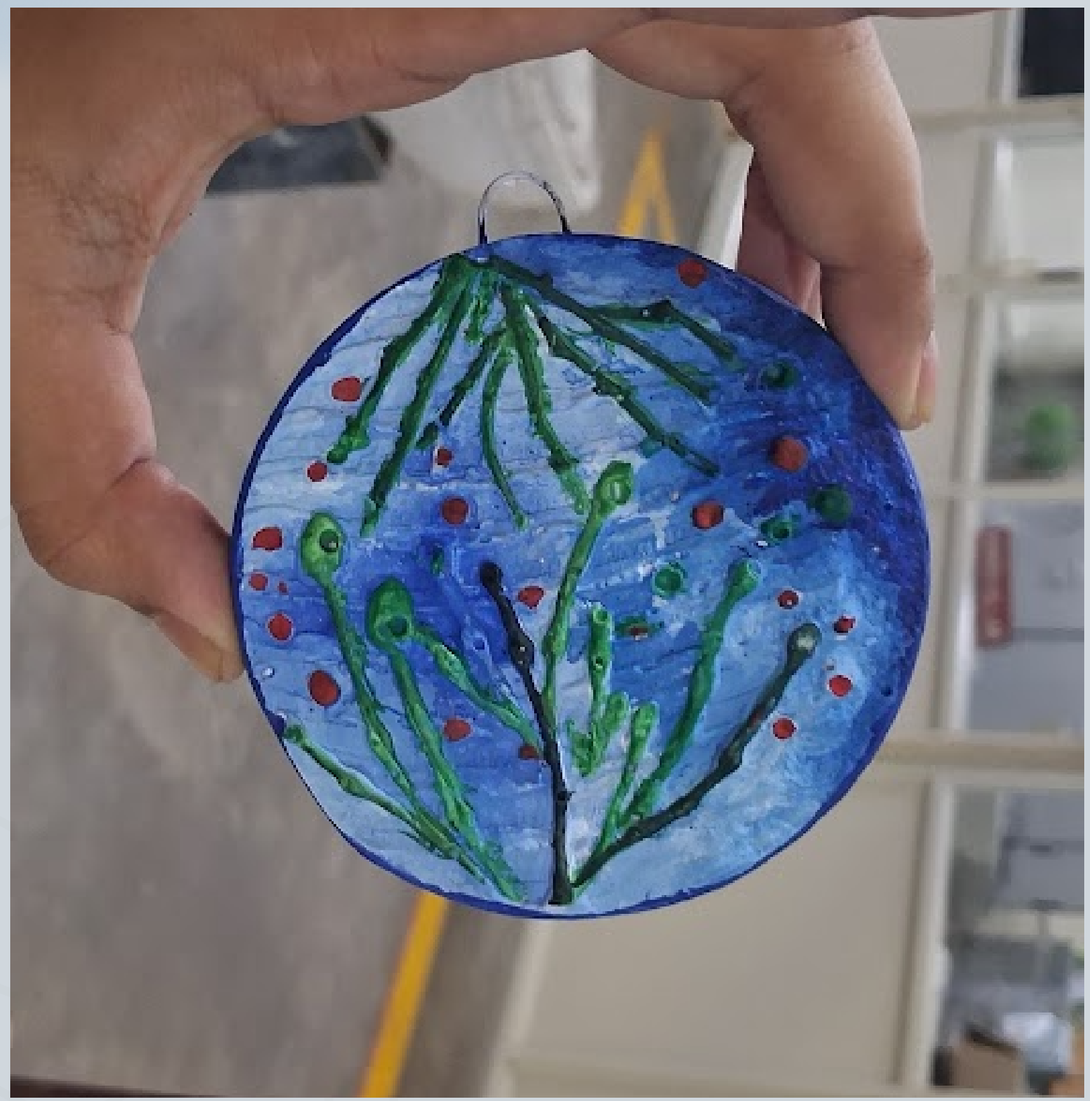
Brainstorming.





Creations.

Creations.



Thoughts behind them.

I have a lot of memories associated with the ocean. Visiting the beach was always a must for us during our annual visits to my mom’s sister‘s house in Trivandrum, and my brother and I would spend hours playing in the water till my mom would call us inside. The beach here in Chennai has formed a big part of my college memories too. Whenever something happens- good or bad- the beach is usually where I go to process it. I’ve also collected shells from every time I go to the beach, and I have a huge collection now. I love the water, and I tried to capture some of the feeling that I get by staring into the waves with this piece. I used a fabric pressed over the mould to give a textured feel to the entire background, giving the impression of waves moving around, and I used different tools to show different parts of marine life. Overall, it was a fun assignment- and led to me planning my next beach outing with my friends :)