Tactile Topographies

Medha Bhavani Girish, EE23B112

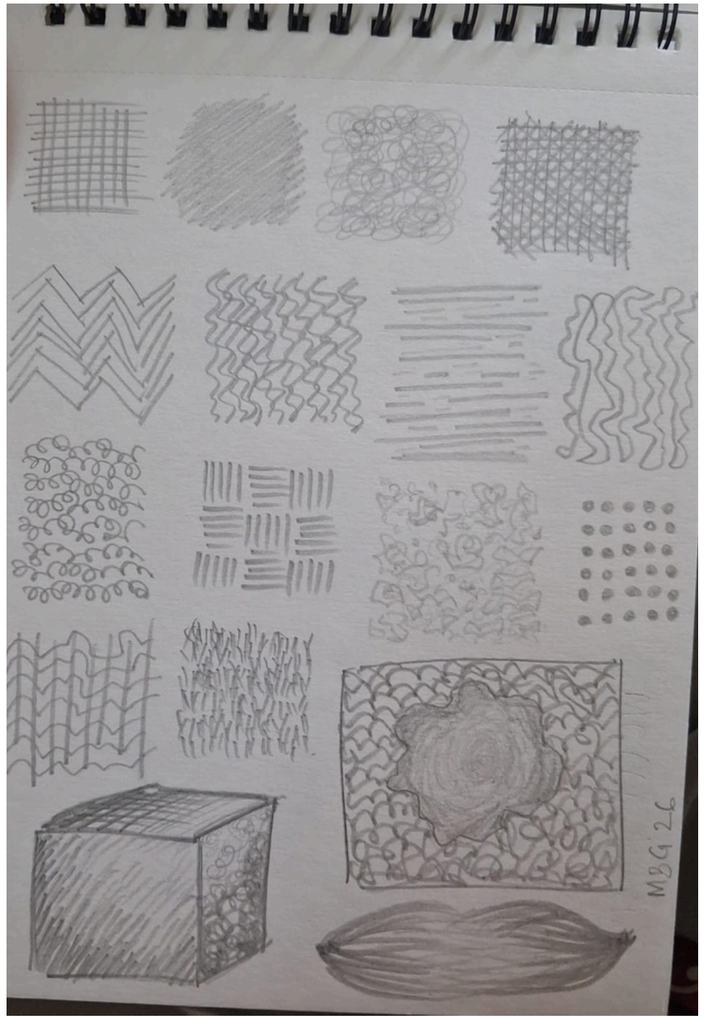

We observed different textures in our surroundings, both man-made and natural

We tried to translate the textures and the feelings they evoked through sketches

Based on these, I tried to imitate the textures and the feelings these evoked in me in my clay model: the flow of water leaving its marks on a riverbed, the bark of a tree, the roughness of moss and small pebbles on the ground. I also experimented with hatching and dots to create some imaginary textures.